1. What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that are stored on your computer, tablet or mobile phone or any associated hardware storage device by websites that you visit. A website can store more than one cookie generally.

2. What information is stored with cookies?

The information that is stored often consists of navigation data primarily regarding the website you visit. By storing the cookies, the site can better guide you when you visit the site and become more user friendly while browsing through the web site. For example, cookies generally also store preferred settings such as your name, your address etc.

3. Why save a cookie?

The reason a cookie is saved is if you visit the same website again a week later, then the web site can access cookies which are stored from your prior access and information. The data contained herein generally can use the website to restore your navigation data and preferences. For example, the website already can enter your user name on a login page, or a webshop can display the products you last viewed.

In other words: Cookies offer the possibility to make a website more personal and user-friendly.

4. Who can view the cookie information?

Only you have full access to all cookies from the website visited every time on your device. Most browsers now currently offer better options to easily view cookies (and possibly remove or block them).

For a website this accessibility works in a different manner: When a cookie is stored, it is linked to the domain name of the website. A website can only view cookies from the same domain name. For example the website: www.a-example-domain.test can not request cookies that have been created by the website: www.en-another-example-domain.test, in essence a different web site.

5. We use the following types of cookies:
